

Who Is Buer?

Posted on May 28, 2025 by Rhyan Hyroc

The Spiral Healer, the Infernal Restorer, the Architect of Regeneration

In the outer silence and inner pressure of affliction—whether of the body, the mind, or the spirit—there exists a call. This call is not always audible, nor does it beg for attention like thunder. It is a spiral. A force that winds inward, asking the seeker: Will you remember what you were built to be?

Buer answers that call.

More than a name in the Goetic annals or a symbol in the Lesser Key of Solomon, Buer is a living infernal intelligence—a spirit whose nature is geometry, healing, motion, and clarity. His presence is spiral-born: dynamic, intelligent, and real. Where others command legions for war, Buer governs the forces that mend, balance, and rectify.

Those who attune to him often feel a shift in how they inhabit their own vessel. There is a restoration not just of flesh or bone, but of orientation—a turning inward that regains a sacred trajectory. Pain ceases to be just pain. It becomes information. Energy becomes intention. Chaos, once overwhelming, aligns into healing patterns.

The Spiral Within

The ancient sigils of Buer, particularly the five-pointed rotating seal, symbolize not only motion but evolutionary recalibration. His spiral is not a passive image—it is a living diagram of his work in the body and spirit. As you begin to integrate Buer's current, you may feel:

- A subtle shifting in your spine or limbs

- An urge to move, stretch, realign
- Spontaneous dreams of green, copper, or radiant light rings
- A sudden clarity about your illness or emotional state

This is not coincidence. It is entry into the spiral, a space where healing becomes a form of infernal knowledge—one that bypasses fantasy and dives directly into the nervous system, the breath, the organs, and the energy fields.

Beyond the Body

Though Buer is known for healing—and often approached for that alone—his essence is far greater. He teaches lucid wisdom, which is clarity born not of intellect alone, but of clarity in motion, clarity in sensation, clarity in response.

Buer is a master of the following:

- Tactical perception — seeing the pattern behind symptoms, events, or spiritual confusion
- Energetic clarity — knowing which energies to release, absorb, or reconfigure
- Strategic healing — not only restoring what was, but optimizing it beyond its former capacity
- Restorative justice — rebalancing not only the body, but the web of cause-and-effect behind imbalance

Thus, working with Buer is not about passivity. It is not a bath in light. It is a recalibration through presence—through knowing what is off and spiral-walking it back into resonance.

Buer in the Goetia and Beyond

Traditionally listed as the 10th spirit in the Ars Goetia, Buer appears as a lion-headed entity with five goat legs rotating around his form—symbolizing his nature as the guardian of motion, medicine, and recovery. He teaches the virtues of medicinal herbs, philosophy, and moral rectitude. He heals all infirmities, especially those that affect the body's mobility and nervous system.

But beyond grimoires, those who walk his spiral today discover even more:

- He guides herbalists toward synergistic plant combinations
- He enhances ritualists' capacity to hold complex healing currents without collapse
- He teaches balance, not by removing intensity, but by aligning it
- He protects those who serve others, particularly healers, empaths, and medical professionals
- He returns sovereignty to those whose illnesses have stolen their voice, movement, or peace

To commune with Buer is to hear the language of logic expressed through the body. It is to remember that your healing is not separate from your power—it is the foundation of it.

Why Buer Now?

We live in a world of disintegration. Bodies fail under stress. Spirits fragment through burnout. Minds twist under loops of fear and exhaustion. And worse: the pace of life often numbs us to the signal that something is misaligned until it's too late.

Buer appears when we are finally ready to spiral back into integrity. He arrives:

- When doctors cannot explain what's wrong
- When treatments plateau
- When spiritual tools lose their edge
- When one has given, and given, and given—without restoration

He comes when the time has come to return—not to weakness, but to sacred design. His spiral does not only go inward. It spirals upward as well. This is the Radiant Spiral—healing as elevation.

The Buer Current

The attunement to Buer begins with study, and culminates in transformation. During this 21-day journey, you will come to feel his presence in many ways:

- In the warmth that flows through your hands during mantra work
- In the sudden insight that tells you which herb to take or which practice to stop

- In the moments when pain lessens with no external cause
- In the emergence of discipline, not forced, but innate
- In the capacity to hold others in their healing without depleting your own reserves

His current is precise. It is strategic. It does not waste time with sentiment. It simply restores. Like a master physician with eyes of light and a mind of geometries, he moves through your field, correcting the angles where your essence has curled into imbalance.

The Spiral Awaits

Before you begin the sacred cycle, allow yourself this understanding: you are not broken. You are misaligned, temporarily. And alignment is not an abstract virtue—it is the core of spiral-based restoration.

Buer teaches that healing is a form of memory. The body remembers how to heal. The spirit remembers its clear channel. The system, under his guidance, returns to this remembrance—and locks it in.

Let his spiral awaken in you.

Let the healer move.

Let the restoration begin.